Very special bridge holidays

Why learn Bridge?

Bridge is the most popular card game in the world and played by one in fifteen people in the UK alone. A highly stimulating and hugely addictive game, bridge is currently enjoying a huge resurgence of popularity. The benefits for children include improving skills in numeracy, memory and concentration; and for adults include mental stimulation helping to keep the brain active and to stave off degenerative diseases. It can be enjoyed at many levels from a social game amongst friends right up to serious competition level. As well as the intellectual and competitive elements, the social side of bridge cannot be underestimated. Many lifelong friends are formed at the bridge table!

Beginner Bridge with the Stockens

Zeb Stocken has many years experience of teaching and hosting bridge events; Claudia – Zeb’s sister – will be on hand to ensure the smooth running of your holiday; and their mother, Dinah, will make up the bridge team. Whether you are starting from scratch or just a bit rusty, you will advance quickly and at the end of the stay feel confident to go to the next bridge level.

Lessons will be in the morning (10am - 12.30pm) and in the afternoon (5pm - 7.30pm). There will also be optional fun, relaxing bridge after dinner.

‘A truly wonderful experience. The bridge tuition has far exceeded my expectations and the team have been fantastic.’

‘Excellent course and practice. Confidence boosting - the perfect platform to get started. I have been left full of enthusiasm to ‘get going’ when I get home.’

Hotel Tresanton

St Mawes invigorates you with its fresh sea air, warm micro-climate and a clarity of light cherished by visiting artists. This is probably the smartest hotel in Cornwall, not because of formality or grandeur (in fact, quite the opposite), but because of how it makes you feel - wonderful! A former yachting club, the hotel was fashioned from a cluster of old houses in the 1950s, hence its higgledy-piggledy levels.

Step forward Olga Polizzi in 1999, and Tresanton was transformed into the Cornish equivalent of a chic and sprawling Greek villa, full of mood-lit nooks and characterful rooms. There are fantastic views throughout the hotel across the sheltered bay to St Anthony's lighthouse and the rolling hills of the Roseland peninsula.

Delicious food in Tresanton's 3-rosette restaurant

The dining room has a calm and cool Mediterranean atmosphere with a mosaic floor and tongue and groove walls and magnificent sea views - one of the loveliest places to eat in England. Paul Wadham has been cooking at Tresanton for over 13 years and has been awarded 3 AA rosettes for his modern, Mediterranean-influenced cooking, focusing on local, fresh ingredients, simply done. The menu has plenty of seafood and changes daily to ensure that only the freshest catch is available to the guests. At breakfast, a round table groans with fresh berries and fruits, delicious granola, creamy yoghurts and warm pastries; from the extensive cooked menu, order fluffy pancakes, eggs Benedict on muffins, full english, smoked salmon, kippers...

Other things to do around and about

There are no bridge sessions scheduled for the afternoons, so this would be the perfect time to explore the local surroundings.

Walking

From the hotel, there are some beautiful coastal and river walks and many pristine sandy coves and sweeping beaches. For a lovely 3-mile stroll, take the coastal path along the river Fal, past the 16th century castle built for Henry VIII, to the picturesque 14th-century church of St Just-in-Roseland (right), which John Betjeman called 'the most beautiful churchyard on earth'.

St Mawes and Falmouth

Visit the cafes, galleries and boutique shops of pretty St Mawes or catch the foot ferry across to Falmouth (right) for the National Maritime museum, the Falmouth Art Gallery and some lovely antique shops. A perfect opportunity for Christmas shopping!

Gardens

There are many beautiful gardens nearby open all year round including the meticulously restored Lost Gardens of Heligan, Trebah Garden, the world-famous Eden Project and National Trust's Trelissik.

Golf, swimming and fishing

There are three good golf courses near the hotel, swimming in the sea from the small beach below the hotel (for the brave!), and fishing trips can be arranged.

Massage and Beauty Treatments

If this all seems too energetic, why not treat yourself to an amazing four-hand massage, just one of many enticing treatments from the in-house masseurs.
